

ATCO Power Sustainability Policy

ATCO Power conducts all its business activities with a focus on operational excellence and a deeply entrenched commitment to sustainability principles, which include community involvement, environment, health and safety and aboriginal relations.

Community

ATCO Power is committed to positively contributing to the quality of community life in the regions where it has operations through direct donations, sponsorship of events and by matching health and wellness financial contributions made through employee driven programs. Employees are also encouraged and supported to volunteer in the communities where they work and live.

Environment

Through a balanced approach of environmental responsibility and stewardship, ATCO Power endeavours to use resources wisely in all aspects of its operations and to minimize impacts on air, water and land. ATCO Power will manage the impact of its facilities on the environment through activities such as pollution prevention, energy efficiency, waste minimization and relevant research and development.

Health and Safety

The health and safety of employees, contractors and the public is a principal priority for ATCO Power. It is integrated in all business, construction and operational decisions.

Aboriginal Relations

ATCO Power recognizes the importance of working cooperatively and effectively with First Nations, Metis Settlements and other Aboriginal groups. ATCO Power's fundamental belief and actions regarding aboriginal relations is based on respect and an understanding to support opportunity, development and employment.
